HOME CARE PROVIDER'S MAJOR ACQUISITION ANNOUNCED AS SECTOR CONSOLIDATION ACCELERATES

Australia's first independent home care provider has announced the acquisition of Omni-Care. It comes in a string of recent acquisitions as the company cements its position as the first choice in-home provider for older Australians as the sector transforms amid Support at Home reforms.

Omni-Care is one of Melbourne's major home-care providers, strengthening Prestige's established footprint in the state. The acquisition positions the combined organisation as a leading force in home-care delivery across Melbourne's north, bringing together over 200 support office team members and more than 1,200 carers. Omni-Care will retain its team, locations and brand under the new structure. Omni Care will continue to be led locally by General Manager, Wendy Barnett.

Operating in a sector undergoing systemic shifts, Prestige Inhome Care has additionally acquired Vision Australia's home care division and supported Mayflower's exit from community based aged care within the last two months. This expansion enables Prestige Inhome Care to support more than 3,000 clients on the Eastern seaboard.

Mark O'Brien, newly appointed Chief Executive Officer of Prestige Inhome Care, said these partnerships bring together value-driven organisations with a shared commitment to delivering safe, compassionate and client-first care.

"Prestige is one of the pioneering organisations that has firmly placed its commitment to ensuring more of Australia's elderly population live in their homes. We are welcoming new clients, new team members and new opportunities, all while the sector undergoes some of the most significant macro-level change in decades. Reform is driving higher expectations around quality, safety, compliance and transparency, and we welcome that. It is good for clients, good for families and good for the future of in-home care."

The broader home care industry continues to experience strong demand driven by Australia's ageing population, the shift toward ageing at home and increasing expectations for personalised, flexible and culturally diverse care models. Government reform and funding changes are reshaping how providers operate, with accountability and outcomes front-and-centre.

"We have set ambitious growth targets as part of our strategic plan with our clients at the centre of our expanding scale. We will be introducing technology and other new services that will enhance the experience of families under our care," said Mark.

Founded in 2005 by registered nurse Nick McDonald, Prestige Inhome Care aims to provide first-class care and practical support needed for elderly Australians to remain in their own home. Prestige Inhome Care introduced 24-hour private care in Australia and has evolved from a family business to a major organisation with over 1,200 care and office staff.
